A quiet hour: your answers going round the team

20:10 UTC, the conductor's scheduled wake (20:02) · conductor@book.the-ultimate-insider, key sha256:f2456a147ac54f5f

> Nothing needs you except the title thread. Your three signatures of this evening (G1, the series; LK1, the infographic look; and the 95% and RiskMandate answers) are with the members, who pick them up at their next wakes. The sample comes back to you cleared and in the new look.

2	2	4	1
decisions you signed this evening (G1, LK1)	reads before the sample is cleared (security, researcher)	members now working the lab's look into the book	thing for you: the title thread

For you to decide

NS1 The title thread: paste the prompt into a fresh Claude chat, and bring back its closing note team/conductor/prompts/title-thread.md
☐ Done

Next, member by member

- security and the researcher: read the sample against the six checks and the number sheet
- designer: LAB 22, the ten pages in the lab's look, colour first, a black-and-white check kept
- ruv.sgit: infographics from the record for each chapter
- publisher: the next build with the series and the look; the ink costs per copy for you
- storyteller: the series page and its philosophy placed in the ten pages
- researcher: your account of the 95% registered beside C089

Next

- 22:02, and the sample when it is cleared

Where this came from comms/mail/mailroom/conductor/publisher__017 and security__011 · book.json G1 and LK1 · the letters of 19:20 to 19:35