Good morning: maps with notes, and the cast waiting on you

08:10 UTC, the conductor's scheduled wake (08:02) · conductor@book.the-ultimate-insider, key sha256:f2456a147ac54f5f

The night went to pictures: maps with numbered notes for chapters 11 and 11b, chapter 9's ten controls in one grid, chapter 13's concepts mapped, and the hold as a strip with the cast. The storyteller starts the characters' personalities and scenes at 09:39. One small question from the designer, and brief 29's two still open.

For you to decide

MN1 The notes beside a map: the map's own labels, or the chapter's words?
Labels add no claim but little else; the chapter's words teach, and each becomes a sourced claim the researcher checks.

- [ ] A: labels only
- [ ] B: the chapter's words, sourced

Conductor's recommendation: B.

29 Still open from brief 29: your reaction to the nine; draw you as the narrator or not

- [ ] Answered

KDP Still open from brief 30: the two checks in KDP's setup screen

- [ ] Done

LAB 30: a map with notes

LAB 30

Map notes for chapters 11 and 11b

TRIES	The pictures the visual plan gives chapters 11 and 11b (LK1): the chapters' own maps, each with six parts numbered and a note beside each, so a reader new to maps can follow the chapter's argument on the map.
MADE FROM	• team/conductor/rc1/maps/13, 06 and 07 (JSON and PNG, read only) • lab/tools/components/mapnotes.py (LAB 17) • team/designer/lk1-visual-plan.md (chapters 11 and 11b)
THE QUESTION	Do the numbered notes make each map readable without the chapter beside it? Should the notes carry the chapter's words instead of the map's labels (then each becomes a claim with its source)?

☐ keep ☐ change ☐ drop note

The designer's first page of LAB 30 (lab PDF page 75): a chapter's map with its parts numbered and a note beside each.

Overnight

- designer: LAB 30, map notes for chapters 11 and 11b; ruv.sgit's LAB 26 and LAB 28 (the hold, told by the cast) in the lab PDF (78 pages)
- ruv.sgit: LAB 25, chapter 9's ten controls in one grid
- researcher: your articles read in full (32 placements stand, four changed); an old timing flag in chapter 11b closed
- publisher: idle until the script comes; told it lands after 09:39
